

Identifying the Compound Predicate Part 2

A compound predicate is when there is more than one subject.

1. True
 False

A compound predicate is when a subject may be doing more than one thing.

2. True
 False

“Betty sings and whistles to the song.” Here, the verbs sings and whistles form a compound predicate.

3. True
 False

“The dancers were very tired.” Here, the subject is plural that means the predicate must be compound.

4. True
 False

“The children drank milk.” Here, drank milk is a compound predicate.

5. True
 False

It’s possible to have a sentence with a simple subject and compound predicate.

6. True
 False

"The children dance and sing." Here, the verbs dance and sing form the compound predicate.

7. True
 False

"The birds outside my window, in the trees, chirrup and flap their wings." Here, the verbs chirrup and flap their wings form the compound predicate.

8. True
 False

"Using the red crayon, I drew a barn and colored it." Here, the verbs drew a barn and colored it form the compound predicate.

9. True
 False

"Each summer I read books and play games." Here, the verbs read books and play games form the compound predicate.

10. True
 False

"I look and listen." Here, the verbs look and listen form the compound predicate.

11. True
 False

"Katie ran and kicked the ball." This sentence has a compound predicate.

12. True
 False

"The team worked hard during the game." This sentence has a compound predicate.

13. True
 False

"My mom cleaned the kitchen and washed the dishes." This sentence has a compound predicate.

14. True
 False

"The ball sailed over the fence after Jeff hit it." This sentence has a compound predicate.

15. True
 False